PRESERVE
YOUR HERITAGE
BECOME PART OF HISTORY

Our documents of local Jewish history are at risk.

The JCA recognizes the urgency to preserve and teach the history of the Jewish community of Greater Kansas City, to connect the past to the present and to the future — and to do it now. Historical materials of members and institutions of the Greater Kansas City Jewish community are in many places including collections in other cities. Still others are stored in attics, basements or closets.

Too many have already been thrown away.

The JCA is committed to providing a place to keep local Jewish history. By continually acquiring documents, photographs and other memorabilia, the JCA fulfills its mission to preserve American Jewish history in Greater Kansas City and the Midwest and reduce the risk of disappearance. JCA will take the leadership to establish an electronic database to link us to the network of archives across the nation.

An endowment account has been established at the Jewish Community Foundation called Saving Jewish History. As it grows, it will ensure the collection and preservation and care of community history in perpetuity.

You can help us save our history.

The time and opportunity for the establishment of the Jewish Archive to preserve the collective history of Greater Kansas City is today.

If you have photographs, family or business memorabilia, or other materials that you would like to donate to the Archives, please fill out this form and mail it to:

“The only thing new is the history you do not know.” — Hon. Philip Klutznick, Kansas City 1982 American Jewish Historical Society 90th Anniversary Conference

Candlesticks are the essential sacred object of Jewish life and most often carried to the new world by a family. This pair was brought to Kansas City from Poland by the Abend family and is in the private collection of Marsha Abend Goldman.

WHAT IS AN ARCHIVE?

It is a special place to collect, properly preserve and make available items of historical interest and value. Archived materials tell a story... your story and our story. Together they tell an American story.

The Purim Ball was once an important tradition for a community celebration. In recent years, it has been revived in many communities to bring special honor to present-day Esthers and Mordecais.

Kansas City Co-op Pre-School visits Pilgrims in Waldo. May 19, 1954.

WHY DO WE NEED AN ARCHIVE NOW?

Every day when someone throws out old files, newsletters, photographs, synagogue records, organizational minutes, letters, or diaries of those long gone, a piece of the Kansas City Jewish community history disappears forever.

The loss of these records has prompted a small committee (see Founders) to ask a simple question: How can we keep them alive and available to benefit the future?

Jewish people have made extraordinary contributions to this community. Without some place to store their stories—and preserve them—the record of their endeavors, and the lessons learned from them, will likely be lost forever.

WHERE IS THE ARCHIVE LOCATED?

The Western Historical Manuscript Collection is located at the University of Missouri at Kansas City in Newcomb Hall. WHMC is committed to the history of Kansas City and the Midwest. JCA will add to the distinguished collection of Kansas City persons and institutions of the Jewish faith already a part of WHMC. An electronic database will link with a network of archives including the University of Kansas Research Library, Library of Congress, and others, and attract scholars and students for serious historical research.

One of the magnificent stained glass windows by the world-renowned artist, John LeFarge, originally installed in the Temple B'nai Jehudah—the only LeFarge windows in the world with Hebrew lettering and installed in a Hebrew sanctuary.

WHO SHOULD PARTICIPATE?

Everyone. Families, businesses, organizations, institutions and individuals. Don't throw away your history. The Jewish community and persons of the Jewish faith have played a significant role in the Kansas City community for many generations. The Jewish community has been innovative and inspiring, making individual contributions to business and culture and collective contributions to welfare, education and social concerns. It is impossible to understand the history of this region without the knowledge of its Jewish history. Our story is incomplete without your story.
